

Letter to The Canberra Times

Published 9 April 2022

Dear Editor

Prince Charles is irrelevant to Australia becoming a republic. The personalities of any of the Royal family are also irrelevant. We don't remain a monarchy because we "like" the Windsors.

Australia is an adult country and can happily leave the apron strings of mother Britain without having to hate whoever is the monarch of the UK.

It's like an adult child moving out of home; it's just time to be recognised as an independent adult. We can remain in the Commonwealth as many other countries have.

It's more than time for Australia to become a republic.

Jennifer Bradley

Cook ACT